Small businesses can operate on a much leaner budget than most large box stores or Internet merchants. This means we can pass the savings along to our customers and still maintain a much higher level of quality or service. We also enjoy added strength and cooperation with our suppliers and our membership in the Contemporary Design Group. When you shop local, you not only save, you support a small business in your community, and for that we are grateful. Thank you.

Introducing tomorrow's design icons products for brands including Lazar, Brueton, Moroni, DIA, and American Leather, to say nothing of his earlier (pre-1997) work as an interior designer. The winner of many design awards, Friedman's declared goal is to bring modernism into more American homes.

just 28. Now a prolific designer for Miniforms, Capello has created a diverse portfolio of furniture, light fixtures, textiles, sound systems and tablewares. Capello is the winner of multiple awards including the 2015 CDG Edward Haimsohn Design Award (the 'Eddie') for Caruso, a colorful reimagining of the audio cabinet with ceramic exterior options, a trumpet-shaped speaker that harkens back to the phonograph, and Bluetooth 4.0 connectivity.

Rick Lee

Rick Lee worked in Chicago and Milan before settling in San Francisco, and has compared his style to California cuisine, which similarly fuses dissimilar ingredients into a fresh and harmonious whole. Another important influence is his wife, fashion designer Colleen Quen, with whom he shares a studio and often collaborates. Lee's style is fluid and often whimsical, and he works in a variety of materials, on projects ranging from art installations through seating units to vases. "I find inspiration ... everywhere - from a gnarled oak tree to a sleek pocket knife. I combine rational thinking with radical influences to create ... pieces ranging from whimsical to minimal."

Paolo Cappello

Born in Verona, the Italian designer Paolo Cappello trained in Milan before establishing his own practice aged

The Contemporary Design Group places a high value on originality in design, and the innovative spirit that gives rise to classic furnishings. CDG stores enjoy selling pieces that embody independence of thought and perfectionism in execution, whether they are time-tested designs that have never gone out of production or exciting new works by young designers. We also reward excellence with the Edward Haimsohn Design Award, or 'Eddie', presented by CDG retailers to the year's most appealing new design. We act on our respect for design, and take pride in all we do to encourage the great designers of the future.

"The details are not the details. They make the design" - Charles Eames Contemporary design history is filled with colorful personalities who explored and developed indelible new styles, like Charles and Ray Eames; Ludwig Mies van der Rohe; Milo Baughman; and Vladimir Kagan. What these very different designers had in common was that they poured attention into every detail, and never compromised their originality. In fact, the designs that become classics - the Barcelona Chairs and Drum Tables - are rarely created with mass production in mind. Their unconventional styling is what attracts attention from discerning buyers, while their top-quality construction demands respect. It's exactly these traits that make the most exciting designers working today stand out from their peers.

Milo Baughman and Guy Hill

A towering figure in the Mid Century Modern movement, Milo Baughman was a furniture designer, educator, and longtime design director of Thayer Coggin, Inc., which continues to manufacture his restrained and livable designs. Although Baughman passed away in 2003, his protegee Guy Hill now occupies the position he vacated at Thayer Coggin. Like his predecessor, Hill is dedicated to modern and contemporary design, with an aim to make it livable and long-lasting.

Stanley Jay Friedman

New York's Stanley Jay Friedman established his atelier in the 1970s, and remains extremely active as a product designer and lecturer. His passion is modernism, and Friedman believes in end to end control over the design process, ensuring his fingerprints are on every product. This highly prolific creator has designed over 1,000

Skovby was founded in 1933 by cabinetmaker Thorvald Rasmussen. With vision, strenuous effort and professional pride he created a foundation for sustainable and functional furniture design, which his son Villy Rasmussen and grandsons Preben and Jørgen Rasmussen have carried on to this day.

Skovby was among the frontrunners in extension systems for tables. Today Skovby is world renowned for their special talents in combining design and functionality.

Wood is one of the most sustainable and lasting resources that exists. Sustainable forests in Europe and North America are increasing. Wood that we obtain from such forests is replaced, which supports preservation of ecosystem diversity. Our excess wood is used as fuel. All wood chips and shavings are utilized for heating our premises and contribute to a positive carbon-dioxide accounting and make up a valuable resource in our pursuit of a carbon neutral production.

It pays to design, construct and produce furniture within the same physical environment. By doing so we achieve cohesion that contributes to a sustainable business model. This is good for our business, environment and people.

Our products are developed through close interaction between cabinetmakers, technicians and the company architect. By keeping all aspects of production under the same roof we maximize efficiency and quality control.

Classic Craftsmanship, Modern Style

Dining-in-motion

Reach any table height, from dining to bar and everything in between. Chairs will gracefully move right along with just the touch of a wand. A great example of Skovby ingenuity.

Dining

Create a space where memories are made. Skovby produces tables that can expand to seat up to 22 dear friends or precious family members. Available in a variety of beautiful hard wood species from European Oak to American Walnut.

The WOW factor

This dining table is equipped with a unique extension system. By turning the dining tabletop a pop-up leaf, split into three, unfolds to yield more space for family or guests. The table seats six to nine people. Available with a wood or stainless steel base plate. The table top is available with wood or frosted glass.

Classic styling for elegant entertaining

This dining table is equipped with a synchronous extension system, i.e. both halves of the dining tabletop slide away from each other simultaneously. This makes the hidden extension leaf rise up for smooth unfolding. Easy to extend from six to twelve seats.

Cassia: flexible, versatile, build-it-your-way wall system.

We Create Durable Furniture with Timeless Design that Will Last Generations.

Heirloom-quality furniture has less environmental impact than a piece that will fail or has a fashion life. We use time-tested joinery and construction methods, combined with durable finishes and quality hardware.

Design Aesthetic

The continued evolution of our furniture designs has coincided with a resurgence of appreciation for design from the Arts & Crafts, Mission, Shaker, and Scandinavian movements. Today, our aesthetic continues to be strongly influenced by these creative movements, as well as the surroundings in beautiful Vermont where our furniture is made.

The Beauty of Natural Hardwoods

Natural hardwoods have specific characteristics that make them warm and appealing to the eye. Swirls, knots and burls are some characteristics that contribute to the natural beauty of finely crafted hardwood furniture.

Double Duty

Furniture and accessories that deliver more than meets the eye

- Modern takes on the sofa bed are supportive and stylish.
- This cabinet boasts cleverly hidden storage for media and consoles.
- This space-saving extension table folds down easily to double as a kitchen table or worktable.
- Modular seating lets you rearrange your space whenever you like.

Take full advantage of your space with multi-function furnishings.

Whether it's a condo or a more generously proportioned house, we all expect the space we have to perform a lot of functions. One way to ensure that your home is working both harder and smarter is to furnish with pieces that serve multiple functions.

Beds with storage
Space is often at a premium in the bedroom, particularly in older houses with tiny closets. Opt for a bed with generous storage and you'll instantly free up a swathe of room for clothes, making you and your partner a little happier. While some beds feature drawers and/or hidden panels behind the headboard, others lift up to reveal huge storage areas. With this much under-bed storage, you can stash bedding, books and out-of-season clothes where they're easily accessible yet totally invisible.

Sofa beds
Sofa beds used to get a bad rap; they were uncomfortable as beds and no great shakes as sofas, either. But those days are happily over. Now top designers and manufacturers are creating sofa beds that are comfortable, supportive and good looking. They're an ideal solution for small guest rooms, multi-function spaces and offices.

Ottomans
Ottomans are a welcome addition to almost any space, from the entry hall to the bedroom; they look great and are easily portable. For added convenience, many ottomans double as storage, with seats that lift up to reveal a handy spot for keeping throws or cushions. Built-in trays are another surprisingly useful feature – simply flip the seat and you've got a handy substitute for your side table or coffee table.

Extension tables
Extension tables have been a must-have for generations, and contemporary designers are constantly producing new iterations. They're perfect for frequent entertainers and anyone whose extended family is often in and out. Contemporary versions are typically designed without the insertable leaves that characterized older tables, so there's no need to store or fiddle with extra parts.

Flexible seating
Modular seating already offers fantastic flexibility, and is a great choice for anyone who likes to rearrange their space from time to time. And some contemporary sets offer even more, with highly adjustable seats that behave like recliners, letting you adjust your position as well as your room layout. Add a swivel chair or two to the mix, and you'll be ready to change the orientation of the whole room at a moment's notice.

Indoor carries a great selection of furnishings that are ready to do double duty with cleverly hidden functions. Ask our showroom staff for a demonstration!

Luxury and Durability

Choose performance textiles that are right for your home

Green credentials: Since 2010, Toray has been working toward a more eco-friendly Ultrasuede production process. Recent environmentally friendly innovations include the introduction of plant-based polyester into the formula for Ultrasuede, and a chemical recycling program that has reduced factory energy consumption and carbon emissions by 80%. The Ambiance®, Dimensions® and Marathon® lines are made from 100% recycled microfiber.

Care: Ultrasuede requires minimal maintenance to keep it clean and fresh. It is machine washable, and liquid spills bead and run off without being absorbed. Most water-based stains can be cleaned up with just a damp cloth, while a mild detergent or solvent will lift off tougher, oil-based messes. Air dry, then brush the nap back into place with a soft brush.

Crypton

In 1993, midwestern entrepreneurs Randy and Craig Rubin developed Crypton®, an antimicrobial, stain and water repellent fabric that was breathable and free of the vinyl coating that was previously considered essential. That gave Crypton a softer, more natural feel than its competitors and made it an ideal fit for high end furnishings. A heavy duty fabric that looks and feels like a luxury textile, Crypton is also resistant to fungus, abrasions, odors, and flames.

Applications: Crypton's popularity has led to the development of several different lines, including Crypton Home® (for domestic specifications) and Crypton Outdoor®. Today, Crypton offers over 2,000 upholstery fabric options in a huge range of colors, textures and patterns, making it perhaps the most diverse producer of technical fabrics. In addition to fabric by the yard, the Crypton Home line includes furniture, decor, accessories, and a line of pet beds and throws, designed in collaboration with William Wegman.

Green credentials: Crypton is a GREENGUARD Gold Certified technology, which produces low chemical emissions and is free of potentially harmful materials. A closed loop manufacturing process recycles waste, including 100% of fabric scraps.

Care: Crypton is designed to resist liquids, causing them to bead and run off. Most stains can be cleaned with laundry detergent and water. Crypton also sells professional grade stain removers, fabric disinfectant and a pet safe cleaning spray.

Opting for a performance fabric costs a little more, but the ease of living they bring to a busy household is well worth the added expense. Ask a Indoor designer about upgrading to performance fabric upholstery that can withstand years of exploration by little hands and paws.

👉 This vibrant sectional was designed by American Leather and upholstered in Ultrasuede.

👉 Ultrasuede's color goes right through the fabric, ensuring that it looks exactly the same on both sides.

Once, having a young family meant putting your interior design dreams on hold. White couches plus juice boxes equaled disaster, and pets were a whole other source of textile-ruining accidents. But thanks to advanced performance fabrics, a busy family life and luxury furnishings now go together just fine. The only challenge is deciding which of the top durable fabric brands best suits your needs.

Ultrasuede

A classic performance fabric, Ultrasuede® was invented in the 1960s by Japanese company Toray, which still owns the brand. It consists of three layers of vanishingly thin ultra-microfibers — surface, structure and scrim — bundled with a polymer binder to create a soft, suede-like texture that's durable and resistant to spills and stains. A similarly priced performance alternative to good leather, it's just as durable but softer to the touch and available in a wider range of colors.

Applications: Ultrasuede is tested for color fastness, air permeability (which prevents odors and mildew from becoming trapped), tensile strength, and abrasion endurance (passing over 200,000 'rubs' on the Wyzenbeek standard test). Its exceptionally high performance in all of these categories make it ideal for upholstery, especially in sunny and humid climates. Ultrasuede is also a great option for pet owners; its microscopic structure resists scratching, it's stain resistant, and it doesn't have a weave to trap loose strands of fur.

👉 Performance upholstery resists spills, including red wine, keeping your bar stools and dining chairs safe.

👉 Ultrasuede combines a soft, velvety hand with incredible durability.

These high-end fabrics are as strong as they are beautiful.

Home cinema

There are movie nights, and then there are nights at the movies. Why settle for anything less than a real cinema experience at home? Equip your media room with a row or two of theater style chairs, in fabric or leather upholstery, for the ultimate in viewing comfort. With cupholders, in-arm controls and even built-in charging docks, modern home theater recliners are shamelessly luxurious.

As for the screen itself, move past the utilitarian TV stand and frame your flatscreen within a home media console or wall unit. Both will raise your TV to an optimal viewing level while hiding away speakers, components, and gaming controls. The best units also offer cord control to keep wires untangled and out of sight. Finally, a well-designed console or wall unit reinforces that the screen is the focal point of the room, which in turn changes how visitors experience the space.

With furniture and accessories that are a joy to use, it's easy to punctuate your home with spaces dedicated to pure enjoyment. Ask your Indoor interior designer for advice on furniture made for entertaining, and prepare to open your home to friends like never before.

Summer cookouts are just the beginning. Entertain friends and family year-round by equipping your home with the best in dining, bar and cinema furnishings.

Conversation

Modular seating sets offer amazing comfort and flexibility. They're ideal for rooms dedicated to togetherness and conversation, and can be reconfigured whenever the occasion calls for it. A large modular set does away with the awkwardness of trying to position a traditional sofa and chairs into a configuration that works for everybody in the room. Be aware that they do take up a significant amount of space, particularly if you opt for a U-shaped configuration.

Dining

Whether you use it every day or reserve it for guests, a formal dining room sets a special tone for meals. What better way to showcase your style and enhance the dining experience than to host in a spectacular room? And formal need not mean conservative or stuffy. A completely contemporary dining setting is absolutely achievable. Start with a table that makes you want to permanently retire the tablecloth; think quality materials, sculptural legs and gorgeous finishes. While matching chairs are a good look, they're not the only game in town; mix and match chairs that are different shapes but the same color — or vice versa — to create an impression that's unconventional but still sophisticated. Hang a dramatic light fitting directly above the table to complete your modern formal dining room.

Gathering

Invite your guests to settle in awhile with a row of stylish barstools. Designers often pour a great deal of creativity into barstools, and they offer a fabulous opportunity to run wild with color and style. Pair them with a high kitchen counter for a flexible solution where the kids can have breakfast in the morning and the adults can share a drink at night. A well-appointed high counter or breakfast bar can also make cooking more social; rather than abandoning your guests while you prepare dinner, invite them to join you over appetizers and a glass of wine while you work!

Don't have the space for a high counter or bar table? Consider a bar cart. They look spectacular when parked in a corner of the dining or living room, and allow you to move your entire collection of bartending gear, glasses

What happens when you shop at a locally owned store?

- More of what you spend stays in your community through payroll dollars, sales taxes, property taxes, and other general expenses.
- The owners and their managers and employees live in your community. Their kids go to your area schools, shop in your supermarkets, and experience the same traffic, weather, and local news. This means they understand where you live.
- Locally owned stores give back. They are the first ones called for auction donations and sponsorship dollars because the organization asking them knows they care about the community.

1. Unique designs and styles hand selected by our talented designers.
2. Home furnishings that follow modern ideas and fashion in style and design.
3. A Contemporary Design Group publication, your local, independent experts in contemporary home furnishings.

- The tax dollars they collect and/or pay to the community and state fund the services that help you, not someone in another state: emergency, police, fire; schools; road maintenance, etc.
- You get to 'kick the tires' before you make a decision. You can see the colors and samples and options in person. You can examine the quality of a dresser and do a 'shake test' on a bed. You can sit on the sofas, loveseats, sectionals, office chairs, dining chairs, and benches before you commit to living with them. Touching, feeling, sitting, and lying down on furniture before you buy it can be pretty darn important.
- An experienced professional is there to assist you in person, to answer your questions, to solve your problems, and even to offer a great place to grab lunch when you're in the neighborhood.
- You become part of the success of your community.
